Community Engagement Toolkit

Version 2.2
March, 2017
Community Engagement Toolkit

T2: Community Engagement Spectrum

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>INFORMING</th>
<th>CONSULTING</th>
<th>INVOLVING</th>
<th>COLLABORATING</th>
<th>EMPOWERING</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Providing balanced and objective information about new programs or services, and about the reasons for choosing them</td>
<td>Inviting feedback on alternatives, analyses, and decisions related to new programs or services</td>
<td>Working with community members to ensure that their aspirations and concerns are considered at every stage of planning and decision-making. We also engage their assets as partners to implement solutions.</td>
<td>Enabling community members to participate in every aspect of planning and decision-making for new programs or services. Community members actively produce outcomes.</td>
<td>Giving community members sole decision-making authority over new programs or services, and lead work to implement solutions. Professionals only serve in consultative and supportive roles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>We will keep you informed, listen to your input and feedback, and let you know your ideas and concerns have influenced decisions</td>
<td>We will keep you informed, listen to your input and feedback, and let you know how your involvement influenced decisions. We will engage you as partners to implement solutions.</td>
<td>We will ensure your input and feedback is directly reflected in alternatives, and let you know how your involvement influenced decisions. We will engage you as partners to implement solutions.</td>
<td>We will co-create and co-produce solutions with you. You will be true partners in making and implementing decisions for the community, your advice and recommendations will be incorporated as much as possible.</td>
<td>We will support your decisions and work to implement solutions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fact sheets, newsletters, websites, open houses</td>
<td>Surveys, focus groups, community meetings and forums</td>
<td>Community organizing, leadership development, workshops</td>
<td>Advisory boards, seats on governing boards, engaging and funding as partners</td>
<td>Support full governance, leadership, and partnership</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Choose your community engagement strategy, clarify the promise to community members, and then fulfill those promises. Engagement is obviously most robust on the right size of the diagram. This can also be read as a spectrum between buy-in and ownership. On the left side, we are often mobilizing people to support or provide limited input or feedback to our decisions. On the right side, we are organizing people to identify their interests and assets – they become deciders, outcome producers, advocates, leaders. It is about shifting power to community.

It is not always necessary, appropriate, or within your capacity to practice collaborative or empowering approaches, but you should push your assumptions and comfort to move as far right as appropriate. Moving to the right means giving up power, because this work is not about your power, but about community results.

---

1 This is adapted from the International Association for Public Participation (IAP2) www.iap2.org
It is essential that wherever you are on the spectrum, you must be clear and transparent about your position and fulfill the promises of being there. The greatest tensions and conflicts come when leaders promise a more involved, collaborative, or empowering level of engagement but deliver an informing or consulting level. If you aspire to more engagement, communicate that and take clear steps that demonstrate your commitment is real. It is also important to be transparent about how much power you are willing to give away or not.

Where are your community engagement efforts now on the spectrum? Where do you aspire to be?

For where you aspire to be, what steps will you need to take to pursue that level of engagement? What power or control do you have to give up?

What expectations will you need to communicate and fulfill for community members?